

2027

EDITORIAL THREADS

austin home

2027 EDITORIAL THREADS

A note on threads: These narrative directions will define one major feature in each issue, and guide the surrounding conversation in print and digital content for each season. However, we encourage a diversity of projects to be submitted across our platforms at any time.

SPRING 2027

THE LEGACY OF AUSTIN

This issue explores iconic leaders and projects that have put Austin on the global design map over several decades, and fresh voices that are leading the legacy of the future. We feature an exclusive home tour of a local design legend, interviews and essays by local icons, a tour of the Charles Moore Foundation, and a “family tree” of architects and their proteges, from the inception of UTSOA to today.

2027 EDITORIAL THREADS

A note on threads: These narrative directions will define one major feature in each issue, and guide the surrounding conversation in print and digital content for each season. However, we encourage a diversity of projects to be submitted across our platforms at any time.

SUMMER 2027

ADAPTIVE DESIGN

Here, we dive into adaptive reuse — the reimagining of existing structures and spaces for new purposes — championing creativity, sustainability, and empathy. Design attuned to ergonomic needs, changing neighborhoods, and growing families.

2027 EDITORIAL THREADS

A note on threads: These narrative directions will define one major feature in each issue, and guide the surrounding conversation in print and digital content for each season. However, we encourage a diversity of projects to be submitted across our platforms at any time.

FALL 2027
THE AIA HOMES TOUR ISSUE

We continue our cherished tradition of celebrating the homes on the AIA Austin Homes Tour.

2027 EDITORIAL THREADS

A note on threads: These narrative directions will define one major feature in each issue, and guide the surrounding conversation in print and digital content for each season. However, we encourage a diversity of projects to be submitted across our platforms at any time.

WINTER 2027 LIVING SMALL

You don't have to live big to live well. This issue explores small homes, ADUs, rentals, and other economic uses of space that respond to urban conditions.

2027 EDITORIAL THREADS

austin home

A note on threads: These narrative directions will define one major feature in each issue, and guide the surrounding conversation in print and digital content for each season. However, we encourage a diversity of projects to be submitted across our platforms at any time.

Spring
The Legacy of Austin
Ed. Submission Deadline: 10.26.26
On Stands: 02.24.27

Special Issue
Home & Design Awards
On Stands: 04.22.27

Summer
Adaptive Design
Ed. Submission Deadline: 01.25.27
On Stands: 05.26.27

Fall
AIA Austin Homes Tour Preview
Ed. Submission Deadline: 04.26.27
On Stands: 08.25.27

Winter
Living Small
Ed. Submission Deadline: 07.19.27
On Stands: 11.17.27

This issue explores iconic leaders and projects that have put Austin on the global design map over several decades. We feature an exclusive home tour of a local design legend, interviews and essays by local icons, a tour of the Charles Moore Foundation, and a “family tree” of architects and their proteges, from the inception of UTSOA to today.

Highlighting the best of the best architects, interior designers, builders, landscape designers -- and beyond.

Here, we dive into adaptive reuse — the reimagining of existing structures and spaces for new purposes — championing creativity, sustainability, and empathy. Design attuned to ergonomic needs, changing neighborhoods, and growing families.

We continue our cherished tradition of celebrating the homes on the AIA Austin Homes Tour.

You don’t have to live big to live well. This issue explores small homes, ADUs, rentals, and other economic uses of residential spaces that respond to the conditions of a growing city.

KAREN ZABARSKY BLASHEK

KZB@AUSTINHOMEMAG.COM

austin home